DR RICHARD REID

Over the last four years, specialist historian and researcher of the First World War, Dr Richard Reid, has brought his detailed understandings of the experiences of the AIF on the battlefields of Gallipoli and the Western Front to local audiences in the Adelaide Hills. Dr Reid's knowledge has been garnered during his professional employment with the Australian War Memorial and the Department of Veterans' Affairs in Canberra and also on many visits to the battlefields as an official tour guide. His responsibilities have included the return an Australian Unknown-Soldier to a final resting place in the Hall of Memory at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra. Dr Reid returns to Stirling to deliver the Remembrance Day Address bringing memories of the conflict and reflections on the aftermath of a four year struggle which affected the lives of Australian men, women and families beyond November 1918.
